Domestic violence is a pervasive problem in virtually all countries, cultures, ethnic and racial groups, and social classes. In a socially and culturally diverse community, many victims of intimate violence face additional hardships if they are not part of the dominant culture. They can face barriers that may hinder the effectiveness as well as limit the amount of intervention and social services they receive. Among the many valuable resources that the JIBC Library has gained with our partnership with the BC Institute Against Family Violence are several videos that provide insight into some of the issues facing these vulnerable victims of intimate violence.

Child Protection in the Chinese Community (V3229) is a 20-minute video in Cantonese with no English translation. This docudrama explains child protection investigations and what happens when a child protection case goes to court. It follows the case of Karen, a 10-year old girl who has witnessed her parents arguing in the home. Margaret Yiu, a child protection social worker with the BC Ministry for Children and Families, discusses the importance of meeting with the child and the parents to gather information about what may be going on with the family and working together to develop a plan for family support. (Ministry for Children and Families)

Circles of Learning: Rosa’s Story (V3163) documents Salvadoran immigrant Rosa Brand’s journey from oppression in a violent marriage to independence and stability as a settlement counselor for women like herself. Scenes from the play “Canadian Tango” dealing with this subject are interwoven with Rosa’s comments and reflections as well as advice from social workers in this 25-minute video. D539 or American Heat, January 2008: Nursing Home Fires (DVD or video, 30 minutes, 2008)
Viewers of this program will develop an understanding of the importance of identifying assisted care facilities in their communities and the unique challenges faced during fires involving these facilities. Methods of developing action plans and training techniques for potential incidents at these facilities are covered. The program also provides methods to reduce the likelihood of an incident at a facility. NFPA 101 and 901 are discussed. (TWL Knowledge Group)

D465 Could a Russian School Siege Happen Here? (DVD, 31 minutes, 2006)
The 2004 siege by Chechen rebels of a Russian elementary school resulted in the deaths of 323 hostages, including 156 children. Most law enforcement analysts agree that it is not a matter of whether, but when it will happen in the U.S. This program examines the preparations to be taken in anticipation of such an event. It identifies concerns faced by law enforcement in the event of an intruder assault on a school and strategies to prepare for and respond to such an event. It discusses ways to identify and prevent terrorist / intruder action. It also identifies the roles of civilians in preparing for and responding to such an event. (In the Line of Duty)

D345 Fireground: Big Rig Rescue (DVD, 30 minutes, 2006)
In this program firefighters in Athens, Texas respond to a tractor trailer truck crash with a driver trapped in the wreckage. It contains footage of the step-by-step process of removing the truck’s cab, piece by piece and shows how complex big rig rescues can be. In this rollover incident, the driver was held upside down, crushed between the roof and the seat cushion. Rescuers worked with hand tools and hydraulic rescue equipment to complete the body recovery operation. (Trinity Workplace Learning and Fire & Emergency Training Network)

D312 Forcible Entry: Part Three — Advanced Forcible Entry (DVD, 23 minutes, 2005)
This is the final segment of a three-part program that reviews the basic theory involving forcible entry tools as well as window, door and lock construction. Part Three deals with advanced manipulative evolutions. It covers the use of heavy duty and power-operated tools to gain forcible entry. Walls can be breached or broken, doors and walls can be cut, and hinges and locks can be cut or removed. This program also covers how to prioritize the order of gaining access to doors, locks, and windows; the limitations of using hydraulic tools; and the differences between residential and commercial techniques. (Trinity Workplace Learning and Fire & Emergency Training Network)

D388 Gang Aftermath (DVD, 48 minutes, 2005)
This program follows former Native gang members and gang associates who have put their destructive pasts behind them. Their stories reveal truths about their former lives and may help to prevent others from making similar mistakes. We hear from current and former gang members, including female gang associates. It dispels the myths and lays bare the truth about the inner workings of street gangs in Canada from an aboriginal perspective. (NFB)

D384 Matching Leadership Style to the Situation (DVD, 40 minutes, 2000)
Keeping pace with the improvements to Situational Leadership II, this updated program shows a series of real-life interactions between managers and staff members to demonstrate how to be an effective situational leader. Settings include a manufacturing environment, a software design firm, a marketing department in a hotel, a training department in a bank, and a customer call center. The program provides a chance for viewers to diagnose different situations and determine if the manager’s leadership style is a match or a mismatch for the staff member’s needs. (Blanchard Training and Development, Inc.)
Recognizing Contaminated Patients  (DVD, 26 minutes, 2007)
Healthcare workers risk exposure to hazardous materials or terrorist agents when hospitals receive contaminated patients. This program provides training to First Receivers who provide initial care and treatment of contaminated victims. Topics covered include the following: types of incidents that could result in widespread contamination; terrorist agents including chemical, biological, radiological, explosive and incendiary; hazardous materials including toxic, corrosive, flammable, reactive, and radiologic; patient symptoms of exposure; and First Receiver training requirements. (Emergency Film Group)

Response to Illicit Drug Labs  (DVD, 34 minutes, 2007)
Provides training to emergency personnel who may participate in a raid on a clandestine drug lab, or who may discover such a facility during a response of a different nature. Topics covered include the following: where illicit drug labs are found; clues to the presence of a drug lab; physical and hazard properties of methamphetamine; the 3 potential conditions of an illegal lab; how meth is processed and manufactured; how to organize a drug lab raid; handling the criminal aspects of a drug lab; and clean-up issues. The disc also includes a bonus feature, Hazmat for Meth Labs. (Emergency Film Group)

SCBA Failure  (DVD, 23 minutes, 2005)
You’re in pretty deep and have about 15 minutes of air in your bottle. Suddenly, your next breath pulls your mask tightly to your face and you figure it out: SCBA failure. Have you rehearsed this potential emergency so that you know what to do? This program will give you the latest practical information that will save your life. (Trinity Workplace Learning and Fire & Emergency Training Network)

Staying Curious: Restorative Practices in Schools  (DVD, 28 minutes, 2006)
This program provides viewers with an opportunity to learn about restorative justice practices and how they can be adapted in schools. It includes clips from a two-day training session with facilitator Catherine Bargen and interviews with Vancouver students involved in bringing restorative justice practices to their schools. (Law Courts Education Society of B.C.)

The Stop of the Century: The Tim McVeigh Stop  (DVD, 33 minutes, 2006)
This DVD focuses on the stop that led to the arrest of the Oklahoma City Bomber Timothy McVeigh following the Oklahoma City Bombing in April, 1995. The intent of the program is to increase the level of alertness on the part of all officers during what appear to be low risk vehicle stops. It gives officers a better understanding of evaluating threat assessment and explains how to take full advantage of verbal and behavioral cues to maintain officer safety and make an effective arrest. There is also a segment on the dragging of an officer — and how officers might prevent that. (In the Line of Duty)

Traumatic Brain Injury  (DVD or video, 30 minutes, 2007)
EMS personnel need to be able to properly recognize and assess the signs of a traumatic brain injury. This episode of Emergency Medical Update looks at common brain injury findings after a traumatic event in order to identify basic life support assessment and treatment modalities. EMS personnel also learn how to recognize what it means for the victim to cope with a traumatic brain injury. (TWL Knowledge Group)
Diversity and Domestic Violence (Cont’d)

Double Jeopardy (V3177) characterizes the extent of violence against women with disabilities and suggests ways of addressing this issue at the local level. Three women with disabilities, who are survivors of family violence, tell their stories. This 24-minute video is primarily intended for women living in independent living centers, their caregivers and other professionals working in the field. (Distributed by Magic Lantern Communications)

Gender Inequality: The Root Cause of Violence (V3228) presents four scenarios, each depicting how gender inequality in a Vietnamese family can lead to violence. The scenarios depict the strife that results between a husband and wife, a young couple, a father and daughter, and two young children. This 16-minute video is in Vietnamese with some English. (Greater Vancouver Vietnamese Women’s Society)

In Honouring Our Voices (V3161) six native women share their stories of recovery and healing, discussing the ways in which they overcame family violence. They discuss the effectiveness of native healing strategies and traditions in this 33-minute video. (Native Counselling Services of Alberta)

No Small Matter (V3226) is a dramatized video that addresses the issue of wife battering in a Sikh home. It features a drama by a Vancouver theatre group that performs in Punjabi. In the play, the wife seeks help from the extended family. Cultural and religious issues are directly related to the attitudinal problems encountered as two Sikh women try to make their family aware that silence and denial are not effective means for addressing family violence and that legal recourse is available. The play is followed by comments from a B.C. Supreme Court Justice and various service providers who deal with family violence in the community. This 28-minute video has English sub-titles. (Public Legal Education Society)

To Save a Life: Ending Domestic Violence in Jewish Families (V3218) is intended for abused Jewish women, Jewish leaders, and helping professionals. This 35-minute video is designed for use in battered women’s shelters, synagogues and other settings where women come together. It provides points of view of formerly abused Jewish women and of rabbis and psychologists. The goal of the program is to end the physical, emotional and spiritual suffering experienced by Jewish women in abusive relationships. (Center for the Prevention of Sexual and Domestic Violence)

A Woman’s Place (V3214) is an hour-long documentary about how women in different countries are using the law to transform their lives and change their communities. It profiles women from South Africa, India, and the U.S. Midwest who are fighting for balance and equality in today’s world. The central question that the documentary explores is “Can new laws change old ways?” The video has been separated into three segments for more convenient viewing. It also has an accompanying educational guide that contains suggestions for viewing the film as well as discussion questions. (Distributed by A Woman’s Place Project)

In Your Rights: Indo-Canadian Women and Family Violence (V3220) Surjeet Kalsey interviews community workers and legal aid staff about women’s rights in family violence situations and the available assistance. This 51-minute video is in Punjabi with an English introduction. It comes with an English guidebook, Help in Crisis. (Distributed by Samaanta)
